TIME BOMBS

To meet once for all the cost of living, we must one and all accept the cost of giving.

It's all right to take people for what they are—if you don't go off and leave them that way.

It takes moral guts to keep mental balance.

Many still must bravely die before we get peace And many must bravely live to keep it.

Men who are bent on serving their nation keep their sense of values straight.

The hope of the future lies not in better human inventions but in better human relations

Too much analysis brings on paralysis.

WEDDING

DAVIS—MORSE

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the United Church in Hanna on Friday, October 27th when Rose Ella daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Morse of the Hand Hills became the bride of Mr. Edward Davis of Chinook, son of Mrs. Davis and the late Mr. W. H. Davis of Calgary. Rev. A. O. McNeil officiated.

The bride was charming in a white sheer wedding gown and veil caught by halo of rose buds. The bride's only jewelry was a gold heart shaped locket a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of sweet-heart roses.

The bride entered the Church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Margaret Davis sister of the groom. Cpl. Irene Morse of the CWAC, was her sister's bridesmaid and chose for the occasion pale pink sheer and wore a coronet of carnations in her hair and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Charming little Shirley Morse, sister of the bride acted as flower girl dressed in pink taffeta and wore a coronet of flowers in her hair. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Mr. Gordon Anderson acted as best man.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Davis, mother of the groom sang "Oh Promise Me". The groom's mother choose for the occasion a dress of antomn brown with which she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The reception was held at the National Hotel where forty guests were entertained at a wedding banquet presided over by Rev. McNeil. Customary Toasts and well wishes were extended by relatives and friends and after the banquet most of the guests departed for the wedding dance at Chinook where a large crowd attended, after which the bride and groom left for Banff on their honeymoon. The bride chose for her going away dress a two piece embroidered turquoise blue suit with matching accessories Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside at their ranch at Chinook.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were Mrs. M. Johnson of Drunheller, sister of the bride and Mr. Chris Davis of Calgary, uncle of the groom.

All Chinook friends wish for the couple a very happy married life.

From a statement March 26, 1944

LET'S be quite frank.

When you read—as you probably did during the past few months—that more than 300,000 people in Canada have syphilis, what was your reaction? Did you say, "That's too bad; something should be done about it", and then turn to the comic page? Chances are you did.

But if that article had told you that Tommy Jones, the lad who used to mow your lawn after school, had syphilis—how would you have felt about it? Or that the young couple who built that cute house in the next block, had just lost a baby through syphilis... would that have made you stop and think?

Or, if you suddenly discovered that your Mar... No? That couldn't happen? But it can. And it does... to hundreds of Tommies and Marys every year, right here in Canada. Right in your community. You'll never read articles like that, of course, for these are the personal tragedies that people bear in silence.

So, when you pick up the paper sometime and read, "... there were 5,000 new VENEREAL DISEASE cases reported in this province last year...", remember! These are not cold figures. They represent 5,000 heart-breaking... heart-aching situations.

Yes, VENEREAL DISEASE is a serious problem. It's a problem for parents; for taxpayers; for young people on the threshold of life; for everyone.

VENEREAL DISEASE need never strike if we all do our part. If we know the facts. If we use these facts to advantage. If we don't shrug our shoulders and say, "This couldn't happen to anyone in my family."

You have a duty to your family and the community.

Health And Education

"A NATION'S HEALTH IS A NATION'S WEALTH" is a familiar slogan which has also been proven to be a fundamental truth. Early in the war, it was realized that health was of the greatest importance in obtaining the maximum efficiency both in the armed forces and in industry. Consequently there was a general awakening to the problems of public health and nutrition. Since that time much has been done to stimulate public interest in these subjects, some parts of Canada being more advanced than others in this field. The Western Provinces have always been well in the lead in matters of health and have achieved splendid results in the control of tuberculosis, which represents only one line of endeavour. Similar progress has been made in other branches of public health and there is evidence that there is to be continued advancement in this direction.

Many Facilities Provided Here

In Canada there are many facilities for the protection of public health and for education in this important subject. Each municipal and provincial government has a public health department, and in addition to these there are the services of the Department of Pensions and National Health in the Dominion Government. All these agencies have on their staffs, workers trained to deal with health problems, and they make a valuable contribution to the welfare of the nation. It is apparent, however, that there is still much to be done if we are to attain to the high standard of health which should be possible to a country such as this. In a recent survey report on the chief educational needs in the Dominion, issued by the Canada and Newfoundland Education Association, it was suggested that the schools might extend the part they now play in maintaining and advancing public health.

Schools Could Extend Program

It is granted, in the report, that in almost all schools there is a program of health education, and that there is usually a generous time allowance for such studies. It suggests, however, that this training is not always put into practice and that further supervision and instruction is needed to secure satisfactory results. Poorly ventilated and badly constructed school buildings in many districts contribute to a low standard of health among the pupils. In addition, adequate nutrition, so essential to the development of alert minds as well as sound bodies, is often found lacking among school children. This may be due to ignorance of nutritional values in the home, or to inability on the part of parents to provide the necessary foods. The schools could assist in these circumstances through education and by the provision of wholesome school lunches. Dental care for children is another important branch of health which could be given greater stimulus in many schools. According to the opinion of those educationalists who prepared the report, many communities are well advanced in all these lines, but those who are not, could look forward to extending the services of their schools towards a higher standard of public health.

If Award Means Anything London Has Earned One

According to an unconfirmed report, the mayors of several British cities headed by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh have suggested that the George Cross be awarded to the City of London, as that decoration was given the island of Malta for its gallant resistance to many months of constant air attack and semi-starvation.

No suggested recognition of gallantry in war could meet with more immediate and general approval than this. Almost from the first days of the war, London has been "in the city" in the Commonwealth would welcome the chance of participating in some way, if such were possible, in an expression of the warmest admiration of the magnificent record of London in the dark days that are passing now.—Montreal Star.

Our New Canadians

Sympathy And Understanding Can Smooth Way For Soldier's Wives

They (British-born wives of Canadian soldiers) are here and we hope here for life. They are accepted as belonging to us now, new members of our community and gradually to become Canadians in thought and outlook, as already they are in the eyes of the law. We must not expect the settling down process to be entirely without its difficulties; but if we now follow up the welcome with tactful and careful extension of the aid offered to them, we may be able to help them over the period of adjustment. They come with customs and ideas that are fundamentally the same as our own, but differing in little details. Let us remember how trifles are apt to assume terrible importance, especially under the influence of perfectly natural homesickness. Sympathy and understanding can smooth the path of these new Canadians.—Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

Key To Bastille

Original Key Sent To America In The Early Days

One of the most interesting incidents in the General's stay was his visit to the Washington Museum where he was shown the original key of the Bastille.

This relic was sent to America in the early days of the nineteenth century by the Municipality of Paris. In the course of his tour of inspection, the General placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, which stands in the Arlington National Cemetery, and paid a visit of pious homage to the tomb of Lafayette.

He also called upon General Pershing, who commanded the American armies in France during the last war.—Tribune, London.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—Must I surrender ration coupons when buying frozen fruit?

A.—Frozen fruit is not rationed, and you will not have to surrender any of your preserves coupons.

Q.—I think I am paying more than ceiling price for beef. Is there any way while I am in a store that I could check this?

A.—Yes, all stores selling meats must display a chart showing the various cuts of beef, lamb and veal and the price of these cuts per pound. If you are still in doubt as to whether or not the price you are paying is too high have your butcher mark the type of cut and the price per pound on your bill and report this to the foods division of your Wartime Prices and Trade Board office. The matter will be investigated for you.

Q.—Permission has been given me to start up in a business from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. I believe I have to have prices set on the merchandise I am going to buy, is this right?

A.—Maximum selling prices in some cases are set on to you by the supplier from whom you buy your merchandise. In other cases they are not. If the latter happens you had better contact the office of the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board and they will advise you what to do, and if the setting of ceiling prices is necessary they will give you the necessary information.

Q.—Would you please send me a copy of your booklet "Remake Wrinkles"? I am mostly interested in children's clothing.

A.—Yes, "Remake Wrinkles" has been sent to you. It's easy to remodel children's clothes from discarded grown-up garments if you know the short cuts. Any woman can quickly learn to make her children's clothing smart and good-looking. "Remake Wrinkles" contains practical suggestions and designs for remodeling clothes for all the family.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumer's News" or the Blue Book (the book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices) mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Rivets In Superforts Not Affected By Heat Or Cold

The stifling heat over airfields in the interior of China or the sub-zero temperatures of the stratosphere will not undo the "seams" of the B-29 Superforts.

Each of the 1,100,000 rivets which play vital roles in "stitching" one Superfort together goes through a command-like course before it is eligible to become a part of the great plane.

Boeing Aircraft Co. engineers first heat-treat the rivets in a terrifically hot salt bath. Then they are doused in icy water and soaked in a bath of alcohol methanol.

Huge freezing cabinets serve as central "banks" for the rivets, which are parceled out to refrigerating substations in the various Boeing shops for use by riveters.

If the parts are needed in the various Boeing branch plants throughout Washington, the lowly rivets are packed royally in dry ice and rushed by truck from the main Seattle plants.

After this stiff training the rivets in the completed Superforts are tough, hard, and indifferent to climatic changes.

SERVICE EXTENDED

Postal service to most areas of France now has been extended to include private and business letters not exceeding one ounce in weight. Business letters, however, are limited to those ascertaining facts or exchanging information. No actual trading is permitted. No registration, air mail, express or parcel post service to France is yet available.

Will Be Great Help

Television Is Seen As New Aid In Detecting Crime

Many new and effective law enforcement methods will be used after World War II, according to Frank J. Wilson, chief of the U.S. secret service.

Wilson, in an address before the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said: "New postwar crime problems will face the nation, and criminals will emerge with new tricks for cheating the public, but the new tricks will not be confined in the underworld."

Pointing out that a few years ago prominent police officials thought the two-way radio telephone in police cars "fantastic," Wilson said that tomorrow it will be television which will help us stop the crook.

"With television," he said, "we will be able to flash many pictures of missing persons or dangerous criminals, or expose the tricks of criminals on television screens in the living rooms of millions of people at the same instant."

Furthermore, he asserted, a city police department can set up television cameras at dangerous highway intersections and bring serious traffic problems into the homes of the people to teach them to walk and drive with care.

"A television screen in every home where there is now a radio can do more than anything else to encourage the public to give the police active support in reducing juvenile delinquency and preventing robbery, burglary and other serious crimes," he said.

A New Assignment

Is Being Mapped Out In India For

A new assignment for Canada's airman is being mapped out in India where two transport squadrons are being made up from among Canadians now serving in that theatre with the Royal Air Force. While the reorganization to put the Canadians together may mean little or nothing as far as the immediate operational scheme is concerned, it is a recognition which our fighting men have wanted in nearly every phase of combat. Just what status the R.C.A.F. as such, occupies in the Far East at the moment is veiled by the secrecy which necessarily accompanies the intensification of action there. For a long time, however, there was an important R.C.A.F. squadron flying out of strategic Ceylon. Scattered throughout the India-Burma theatre R.C.A.F. men serving with the R.A.F. have been in the thick of the battle for nearly three years, in fighter, bomber and transport services. When the time comes for a major diversion of some of the R.C.A.F.'s hard-hitting squadrons from the European theatre, the tropicalized nucleus for a new Canadian command group will be ready.—Montreal Star.

Coarse Grains

Farmers Should Arrange For Supplies As Soon As Possible

Because coarse grains will likely be moved out of the head of the lakes as soon as shipping restrictions are removed by the Wheat Board, Saskatchewan farmers who depend on the purchase of feed grains for their livestock have been advised in a statement by the Department of Agriculture, to get their requirements as soon as possible. Mr. Mcintosh added that all farmers should assure themselves of ample supplies of feed grains until the next crop is harvested. Wheat and flax shipments have been given preference over oats and barley, with the supply of such grains at the lake head sufficient for needs, and at present ceiling prices there is no gain to elevator companies in holding coarse grains in store.

An Old Custom

Indians Proposed Marriage By Sending Cocoa To Girl's Home

In Honduras the traditional wedding drink is chocolate, reports the Minneapolis Star Journal. The custom goes back to pre-Columbus days, when it was customary for an Indian youth to propose marriage by sending a matron in the girl's home with a gift of enough cocoa for a feast. If the girl accepted the present, she meant "yes". Then by way of a marriage announcement, she sent back enough cocoa for two parties, one at his home and one at the home of her relatives. From this two-for-one custom grew the question, "When will you be serving chocolate?" Meaning, "When will you be married?"

Battle Of London

Hundreds Of Thousands Of Homes Are Destroyed

The Battle of London has been no side-show. If she had wavered, then the Reich of a Thousand Years might have become a reality. Our losses alone reveal what we have suffered: 60,000 citizens of London have been killed; more than 100,000 wounded; while few among us have escaped the onslaught without some loss or injury.

Hundreds of thousands of our homes have been destroyed or wrecked; our treasured possessions plucked at deluded. The heart of our city has been swept by fire; her noblest monuments lie in ruins. There will be no joy-bells rung for the liberation of London; no flowers strown, nor wine casks brimmed. It is a fact that the world will accept as calmly as it accepted the fact of our resistance.

The triumphant citizens of London, in the days of her liberation, send their greetings to the men across the Channel. She is shabby and battered, but her heart is warm. She has a welcome waiting for them.—London Evening Standard.

HERE'S MY FEED PROBLEM

Has feed a definite effect on the health of baby chicks after hatching?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

One sure way to save baby chicks is to put the best of the necessary food in their beaks before they start hatching. Naturally the only way to do this is through the hen. So feed your laying hens "Miracle" Hatching Mash at least two months before you collect the eggs for the incubator. "Miracle" Hatching Mash is tested to give your laying hens perfectly balanced food value. If you have plenty of farm fresh milk, mix your own feed with "Miracle" Hatching Mash Supplement.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

Red Is For Love

— By — CLIFFORD L. ALDERMAN

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

They were wearing red again this season. Fifth Avenue was flaunting it, bright and brave and challenging, and Janet was wearing it as Martin came face to face with her on the avenue, just as she had that night. . . .

No, time and distance hadn't healed the old wound. It was possible to escape for a while from memories; down out the heart's quiet insistence with bluster. But this was no memory; this was reality. This was Janet.

Martin's heart was saying, "You love her more than you ever did. You can't change that. Not even though you lost her and she married Stewart."

"You've come back, Martin." He might have been gone two weeks instead of two years, the way she said it, but the color had drained from her face.

He nodded. "Three days ago. It's strange, running into you like this, out of all the millions. How's—how's Stewart?"

"Oh, he's fine. They've made him assistant sales manager. He's awfully happy about it."

"Glad to hear it. Give him my regards, won't you?"

There were many things he would have liked to know but he said nothing of them. She must be happy with Stewart; she looked so beautiful.

Janet's eyes were full of unasked questions, too, but all she said was, "It's been a long time, hasn't it, Martin?"

It didn't seem long. . . . They had been roommates at college. Martin Wood and Stewart Conway. In New York, after graduation, Martin went to work with a large manufacturing concern and Stewart took a job as a car salesman. They leased an apartment in Jackson Heights and bought an assortment of furniture that would have given an interior decorator fits.

Life was extremely pleasant. Women were extra-curricular; Stewart knew a lot of them—blondes, mostly, light-headed in more ways than one—but they were occasional playthings, not to be taken seriously.

That was before Ann and Janet Ryder moved into the apartment across the courtyard and complicated things. Stewart studied them critically from the living-room window for some time before he asked, "Do these old eyes deceive me or are they good looking?"

"You can't tell from here, Stew."

"No, but you can from there. Stop sitting like a vegetable and let's go." They were all good friends in no time. Stewart had a streamlined approach that breezed past formalities.

It was not hard to tell that Ann and Janet were sisters. They looked somewhat alike and both were pretty. But for Martin there was never anyone but Janet from the first. She had blue-violet eyes, and it took just one smiling glance from them to make him feel the same way. That made Martin's chances look pretty hopeless. Stewart had to fight women. They were very head highly irrepressible messages of their own devising into his engaging gray eyes, his hair was just unruly enough to make their fingers itch to fool with it and his grin was pleasant to remember. He and Janet were vying for the first place before they had known each other five minutes.

Ann was quieter. She had a better job than her sister and could buy more clothes and better ones—Janet invariably had to borrow from Ann—yet it was Janet who always stood out in a crowd. Martin never told Stewart that he loved Janet, nor did Stewart mention how he felt, but there was a growing tension between them. The old camaraderie was gone.

One day when Stewart was out of town Martin called Janet and made a date for that evening. Janet wore red. It deepened the blue-violet of her eyes to an intensity that left Martin breathless and a little shy, but it put new courage into his heart. He almost took her in his arms when he said, "Good night."

He felt a quiet, positive certainty that her love was his for the taking. The next day Channing, vice-president of the export division, called him in. "You want to go to Rio as assistant manager? You'll have to sail Friday."

Before he was fairly out of Channing's office, Martin knew he was going to ask Janet to marry him and he went with him to Rio. It was dark when he got home. From the living room he looked at the lighted apartment across the court. A girl in red was being led by a man in Stewart's arms. There was no need to look again. . . .

Janet stumbled out, sick and bewildered. Why hadn't he known it? He was foolish to think. . . .

Stewart found the note after Martin had said, "Dear Stew—I'm off for Rio. Best wishes for happiness to both of you. Please don't write—I want to forget. 'Martin'."

Janet said now, "Oh, here's my bus. It's been—good to see you, Martin. Good-bye."

Martin walked on, watching the bus. He could see Janet on its top deck—a bright, brave little figure in red. The bus stopped at the next corner and Janet stepped off. "I—" just thought I'd rather walk," she said. Martin drew a dime out of his pocket and handed it to her. Janet blushed. "Broke as usual," she confessed. "I forgot—I spent my last cent on this dress. I love red. You see, I haven't changed, Martin. Only now I have to buy all my things instead of borrowing Ann's."

A desperate hope gripped Martin. He said, "Do you remember the red dress you wore that night, Janet?" Janet smiled. "Ann had just bought that dress. I borrowed it, and was Ann mad? She was planning to wear it the next night."

As the taxicab driver who deposited Martin and Janet at the house where Stewart and Ann lived summed it up: "This guy thinks this dame marries his pal and all the time it's her sister his pal marries, see? But everything is O.K. now."

A Bird Lover

The Passing Of Jack Miner Is A Sad Loss To Canada

Nature lovers and admirers of a delightful and kindly character will mourn the death of Jack Miner of Kingsville. Birds were his particular friends; he was their trusted host. Annually thousands of these aerial travellers stopped at his sanctuary for rest and refreshment. The Government, in 1916, set aside a large area about Jack Miner's home as a protected spot for migratory birds. His Christian character was evident in his "banding" with Scriptural verses some 32,000 birds that dropped in on him at his home.

While birds were his hobby, Jack Miner was a nature lover in the larger sense. He loved all wild things that move about; he loved the forest and loved all country scenes. He had a passion for flowers which was hereditary. Among the Miner family's possessions when they came from Ohio to Canada was a barrel of flower bulbs and shrubs, the cherished property of his mother, while young Jack's treasure was a cottontail rabbit.

This delightful character did not seek fame, but fame sought him. Without direct association with public life, he was among the best known men in North America, and was honored by some 20 societies. He could wear many decorations bestowed upon him in recognition of his work as a naturalist.

Why did so many people scattered throughout the continent honor Jack Miner? Because of his lovely disposition, his love of wild things, and his family with Nature's secrets. His life was humble and serene, but he was happy, and hosts of kindred souls were made happy also by his activities and the stories of his experiences so close to Nature. Edgar A. Guest expressed the thought of Jack Miner's innumerable friends when he wrote:

From pole to pole the wildfowl have spread Jack Miner's fame; The youngest goose in Canada by now has learned his name. And so to old Jack Miner this simple thought I pen: He's better known in bird life than in the haunts of men.

—Toronto Globe and Mail.

Know Our Navy Minister

Germans Give Most Publicity In Press To Angus Macdonald

If further proof were needed that the magnificent achievements of the Royal Canadian Navy have earned international recognition, it may be found in an interesting letter from an R.C.A.F. officer now a prisoner of war in Germany, excerpts from which were published in this newspaper. Fit. Lt. Kingsley Brown writes that the German press shows a keen interest in Canadian naval affairs, and that Hon. Angus Macdonald receives more publicity in Germany than any other Canadian. Mr. Macdonald is pictured by a Berlin newspaper as working with quiet confidence and determination toward his goal.

Regardless of its source, the picture is a true one, as most Canadians are well aware. The only detail lacking is the fact that Mr. Macdonald now believes his goal is practically reached, and his job finished. However, that detail does not detract from the picture as a whole; Canada's Navy Minister needed great powers of confidence and determination, to say nothing of ability, in order to reach that goal—Kingston Whig-Standard.

Doing Splendid Work

Canadian Red Cross Still Sending Food To War Prisoners

Since the commencement of packing in 1940, the plants of the Canadian Red Cross have packed 12,133,202 food parcels for British and Allied prisoners of war in enemy hands. Harold Leather, chairman of the Society's Prisoners of War Parcels Committee, told the Canadian Red Cross Central Council at a meeting in Toronto.

"From January 1st, 1944, to September 30th, the six plants located in Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, Windsor, London and Winnipeg, have packed 4,186,916 in the nine months' period," he said. "Since the opening in 1940 this work has involved the expenditure of $28,000,000."

"During the nine months of packing this year, he said, that all plants had packed to capacity. "During the heat of the summer the voluntary workers have turned out wonderfully well, and I feel that it is a great achievement of the women's organizations of Canada to have done such a splendid job," he declared.

The number of Canadians in all services and civilians in enemy hands is 8,150, according to a report made by Mrs. Jackson Cook, acting director of the Canadian Red Cross Enquiry Bureau in Ottawa.

"The Bureau has forwarded to the next-of-kin, in Canada only, of wounded soldiers, 6,000 'Red Cross Messages' for the period from August 31st to September 30th, with a higher number expected for October," she said. "These messages are sent one cent postage rate, and from letters on file are being received by the addressees with gratitude and as evidence of Red Cross service."

Barbed Wire

Canadian Firm Has Supplied Vast Quantities For Troops

Anyone who has ever tried to climb over barbed wire has a fairly intimate acquaintance with this type of fence. Soldiers know barbed wire even better, first in basic training, later on the battlefield. Yet almost all Canadians, barbed wire had never been used on this continent in the form required by the armed forces.

This type is known as "concertina fencing," and as the name suggests it comes in big springy coils. A Canadian wire manufacturer undertook the task of supplying huge quantities of this "concertina fencing" to the armed services. The experiment was so successful that the firm has filled not only the requirements of Canada's armed forces and of Great Britain, but has been able to export some 40,000 coils to the United States.

Sugar For Bees

New Form Of Sugar Permit Has Been Issued

A new form of beekeeper's sugar purchase permit has been issued by the Sugar Administrator of the War-time Prices and Trade Board, but procedure for obtaining supplies remains unchanged. A beekeeper who requires sugar for his bees must register with the Board, but, once registered, he need not register again. To obtain sugar he must forward to the Provincial Apiarist for his province a statement giving his name and address, the number of colonies of bees, the period during which he expects to use the sugar, and the minimum quantity of sugar required.

The Provincial Apiarist then issues a sugar purchase permit, giving the beekeeper authority to buy not more than a specified quantity of sugar. On receipt of this authorization, the beekeeper completes another section of the permit and turns it over to his supplier.

Intricate Work Of Making Optical Glass For War Purposes

Before the war, most of the world's optical glass was produced in England, Belgium, Czechoslovakia and Germany.

Today, the highly ground and polished glass used for telescopes, range finders and other high precision fire control instruments, is made in Canada.

The process for making optical glass is an intricate one. It requires the melting of glass in clay pots. This process takes some time and then the glass must be left to cool. When a pot of glass is finally cooled, it cracks irregularly into various shaped and sized pieces. These pieces form the first steps along the line towards telescope, periscope and other optical pieces.

The job of the optical instrument is an important one. Whether the glass is in the air, on the sea, or over the land, they are the gauge of distance and direction.

Color Blending

Care Should Be Taken In Mixing Your Own Paint Colors

Certain paint colors, depending on materials from far-flung parts of the world, are increasingly hard to get because of the difficulties in procuring foreign chemicals, paint dealers say, but the smart householder can turn the shortage to his advantage by mixing other colors to produce original effects.

Only one caution is needed—if you are blending your own colors, be sure you know exactly how much surface you plan to cover with the new color and make sufficient to do the job the first time. You'll never match it exactly on a second try. Similarly, if you have to stop, be sure to stop at a corner or at the end of a wall, not in the middle of a flat area.

Green and yellows in particular are said to be in short supply in most stores. The paint industry has done a remarkable job in developing water substitutes for many of their former imports, but there are some things which just can't be duplicated. Some of the dyes used in certain paints are among the things which must wait for a restoration of world commerce.

The General Merchant of Canada points out in an article directed particularly at paint dealers, that much can be done to meet the shortage of certain colors by showing customers how to blend two or more of the available colors to get many beautiful pastel shades.

"Color blending is being recommended by a number of manufacturers to help the dealer greatly increase the color range available to either experienced or amateur painters," says the publication. "Both types of painters are interested in blending paints and securing unusual shades for both interior and exterior use."

SELECTED RECIPES

BROWN BETTY WITH CHEESE

3 to 4 tablespoons melted butter
1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup maple syrup (art)
1/4 cup corn syrup
1/4 cup sugar
1-16 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon or nutmeg (or both)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup grated cheese
1/2 to 3/4 cup water (depending on variety of apples)

Toss melted butter and bread crumbs together. Place about one-half cupful in the bottom of a 1 1/2-quart greased casserole and cover with half of the apples (pared, cored and sliced), and half of the combined corn syrup, sugar, salt, cinnamon or nutmeg, lemon juice, cheese and water. Now put another layer of buttered crumbs over this (about 1/2 cupful) and top again with a layer of sliced apples, then a layer of the combined mixture. Top all with the remaining buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven (350-375 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes, then remove cover and bake until apples are tender (45 minutes or longer). Serve with cream, with or without plain whole milk or cream.

Refreshments for unexpected guests are really no problem at all if there are crackers on the pantry shelf. A special treat that hits the spot on winter evenings is hot chocolate served with toasted crackers and cheese. Only a thin slice of cheese is necessary to produce the desired flavor, and a topping of chopped olives makes it doubly tempting.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

The Quick and the Dead

Ordinarily, it is not difficult to distinguish between a dead animal and one that is alive. With plants it is different. Under conditions of severe drought, the grass in a meadow or lawn may look dead; but only a day or two after rain it is obviously very much alive. Seeds show no signs of life until they are provided with conditions favourable to germination, and sometimes they may be alive, but dormant, and refuse to germinate even under apparently favourable circumstances.

If the harvest weather is fine, and the chances of damage by diseases are small, both your seeds are usually alive. This fall, harvesting conditions have been very bad, in many districts, and frost has undoubtedly damaged a good deal of grain. Most farmers, therefore, will be wise to make a germination test or have one made.

Live Elevator company agents can provide printed cards giving detailed instructions for making tests at home. They will, also, accept samples of wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax for testing in our laboratory. First class equipment and a skilled staff are at your service. Official government tests are made, on request, at Plant Products Division Laboratories at Calgary, Saskatoon and Winnipeg.

Poor stands of grain are an invitation to weeds. Take no chances; but either make a test or have one made.
